British Premier Pleads For Understanding And Peace Among Nations

London.—In outlining the Government's proposal to alleviate unemployment Mr. Lloyd George made the following declaration in the House of Commons:

"Peace and a good understanding among nations is vital. Let us get out of the atmosphere where you talk about war, where you talk about a front on your back you are not a party. Trade cannot start in such an atmosphere. If you intervene to make peace, your motives are misunderstood, but God help Britain will not do it, and we will. We want the nations begin again the task of peace."

Mr. Lloyd George, referring to the British and their war, said there had been no restrictions on the British side to trading, but that the total trade for the first eight months of the present year had been only £3,150,000, which was not an unlimited field in Russia for British or any other enterprise.

In the debate following the Prime Minister's speech Mr. Asquith said in his judgment the question of employment raised the necessity for re-consideration of the entire problem of international indebtedness, including the indebtedness of the Allies to one another, and the indebtedness of their late enemies to the Allies.

Pacific Naval Base Not Named

Premier Hughes Says It Will Not Be Singapore.

Melbourne.—Premier Hughes, mentioning the question of internationalization of the Commonwealth, said the question of a British naval base in the Pacific was discussed at the recent conference of the Empire and that a decision regarding it was reached. "The whole question is that the base would not be at Singapore," he said.

Premier Hughes' reference to Singapore may be taken in connection with an article in the London Daily Sketch reviewing the recent visit of Great Britain. It was a proposal a new naval base in the Pacific and which stated it was intended to spend £2,000,000 in constructing Singapore into a first-class naval base. Premier added that if an agreement were reached at the Washington armament conference, the arrangement which included the creation of an alternative base of less importance in Australia, could be countermanded.

Domestic Must Share Burden of Naval Defense.

London.—A reporter despatched from Wellington, N.Z., stated that a debate in the New Zealand House of Representatives on Imperial matters had been opened by a speech of Premier F. E. Massey's attitude. A small group of labor members criticized the Anglo-Japanese alliance adversely and objected to any alliance with Japan, regarding the possibility of war commencing. It was agreed that a strong feeling was evidenced that the Dominion must shoulder its fair share of the burden of naval defense.

A Red Cross Appeal For Peace

Nations Asked to Join in Campaign Against Spirit of War.

In virtue of a higher law and duty, and of principles above the level of human passions, the helping hand of the Red Cross was stretched forth to all victims throughout the ordeal of the Great War.

Today, the Red Cross owes it to itself and to all its many workers to proclaim as an ideal and a practical means of peace, an effort against the horrors of war, an attempt by world-wide help and unselfishness definitely to abolish war.

More continuation of Red Cross activity in time of peace will no longer suffice. It is the wish of the Red Cross to work in the interest of peace.

Therefore, the Red Cross calls upon all well-educated citizens of all countries, of all creeds, of all social classes, of all professions, of all nationalities, religious, be it noted, to join in their power in a systematic campaign against that spirit of war which is a constant menace to the world.

During five years, millions of men were killed or maimed. Today, thousands of exsoldiers or prisoners of war are still maimed, maimed in body and mind and suffering. All of them believed that the germs of the great ordeal in a mere moment had been born in them to be more brotherly, fraterly and more fully.

Instead, disorder and uncertainty, distrust and greed, hatred and the spirit of fresh quarrels are reappearing throughout the world. The spirit of war, unquenched, reigns supreme. Its sinister influence is evident. It inspires lines of policy and press campaigns, which lead public opinion astray and embitter the economic competition among nations.

During the terrible years of the recent war, superhuman efforts were required to bring the Red Cross into existence, and to maintain it. Its work cannot be attained without the active and intelligent participation of all members, particularly voluntary organizations, the press, the clergy, and above all, National Red Cross Societies.

To the union of these forces must be added the efforts of the government, the power of diplomatic conviction.

Every man, as far as lies in his power, must contribute to make peace permanent in the world.

It is the duty of every man to judge the world in the light of his own selfishness, anger, fear and human passion, but in a spirit of concord and mutual aid.

That only can a better future be possible.

Fatherly to the ideal which inspired its founders, and which it has ever served, the Red Cross hereby pledges its efforts to see that the work of its world does not end with war. The Red Cross appeals to the heart of all mankind, that each individual may find in himself the needed strength and determination to make and keep universal peace.

They have helped in vain?

Have millions of human lives and the wealth of nations been sacrificed in vain?

Faced with these questions, the Red Cross recognized a duty.

At the suggestion of Senator Galt, the Canadian and Italian Red Crosses, the tenth International Red Cross Conference, which met at Geneva on April 1st, 1921, voted the following resolution:

The International Committee of the Red Cross and the League of Red Cross Societies shall address an appeal to all nations, exhorting them to combat the spirit of war, which dominates the world.

These two organizations call thereon on nations and individuals to fight with all means in their power this malevolent spirit. May statesmen, military leaders and all the combatant and labor remember that it is their duty, in the interest of man kind, to help peace to conquer the earth.

Above all, children should be brought up in this fundamental belief.

It is essential that the human mind should once more be open to the broad lines of an International Conference, which will be held in the New South Wales wheat port for the coming season. The Government will pay the farmers a cash advance of three shillings per bushel on delivery to the railway.

Will Finance Australian Wheat Peel.

London.—A Reuter cable from Sydney, Australia, says that Premier Doulos has announced that arrangements have been made to loan £1,000,000 to the New South Wales wheat port for the coming season.

The imports were £7,535,000 in the previous year.

The Lucullus reef is 70 feet of water, and it is believed divers may be able to recover part of the wheat.

The Farmer Nominee

Lincoln Henry Jeffill was born at Galesburg, Ill. U.S.A. in 1861. He was educated in the common school, Oneida, N.Y. and at the Royal College, Galesburg. Following his graduation he studied law under the supervision of the late Judge P.R. Post, a former classmate, who afterwards became Minister of Internal Revenue, U.S. Co. Chicago, and who, at his death two years ago, was as vice-president of the company for whose employees he had, in his latter years, perfected a pension plan. Mr. Jeffill was admitted to the Illinois bar and practised law for four years.

Desiring thus to engage in an out-door occupation, Mr. Jeffill came to Alberta with the family which had just then started and bought land at Raley in 1901. For the next two or three years he came up during the summer season, returning to his practice during the winter months. In 1906 he decided to make his permanent home on the farm. Thereafter he lived wholly at Raley, and increased his herds at that time his farm consisted of four sections. Late in 1908 that he, still faring poorly, sold 1200 acres.

Mr. Jeffill is a widower. He was married to Mrs. Jennie Johnston, who was a native of a place which was known in Lethbridge where she lived during her later years. The late Mrs. Jeffill was a graduate of Oberlin, and Mrs. Jeffill was one of three who had received the degree of Doctor of Music from the University of Michigan.

Mr. Jeffill has been identified with the organized farmer's movement since before it was incorporated into the United Farmers of Alberta. For two years he was a director of the Alberta Farmers' Association.

He has been a member of the Raley local U.F.A. since its inception, and has been president of the Lethbridge District U.F.A. Association since its formation two years ago.

By Request

By special request of one of our own members establishing farmers, we are inserting the following article:

Hatfield-Rainmaker

The business of Mr. Hatfield, the so-called rainmaker, has received a great deal of free advertising since he established himself in the Medicine Hat district. He has been accepted at face value, the drought-stricken district where he has established his rainmaking apparatus, being, as he says himself, well suited to his "profession". In the opinion of The Farmer's Advocate, there is something profoundly pitiful in the manner in which the farmers of Medicine Hat have welcomed Mr. Hatfield and his mysterious apparatus. Frankly, we do not believe that he can increase the rainfall in the Medicine Hat district; we do not believe that his operations in the district, this summer had the slightest influence in the amount or frequency of rainfall.

His presence in the Medicine Hat district, however, has had one very marked result; it has advertised the Medicine Hat district as undesirable for farming purposes, and has been well paid by the farmers for doing so. Without attempting to subject his methods to scientific scrutiny, farmers in other parts of Canada, where rain has been scarce for a season or two, have expressed their intention of calling Mr. Hatfield to their rescue. They entirely overlook the very important fact that their respective districts are branded as drought-stricken areas that employ Mr. Hatfield. If they are to face this prospect, all well and good. The Farmer's Advocate is of the opinion that Mr. Hatfield's activities as a rainmaker in Alberta have done more to injure Alberta's reputation as a farming territory than could possibly be counterbalanced by any changes in precipitation brought about by him in a small area.

Whitla Boy thrown From Horse; Killed*Sad Accident takes Ten Year Old Son of Mr. and Mrs. Hall on Thursday

Percy, the 10-year-old son of Mr. & Mrs. Hall, well-known farmers of this district, and an untimely death last Thursday about 6 o'clock, by being thrown from a horse and alighting on a large sharp-pointed rock.

The little fellow left the farm about 10 a.m. on a very gentle horse. His task was to drive a herd of stock to a water hole some distance from the Hall farm. About 5 o'clock the little animal arrived at the farm of Geo. Lawrence, a neighbor and friend of Mr. and Mrs. Hall. The actions of the animal attracted Lawrence's attention, who caught it and started home with it. As he was passing through a small canyon on his way to the Hall place, about midway between the water hole and the Hall farm, the horse stopped, snorted and pulled back. Lawrence had quite a time to get the animal started. He finally succeeded, however, and upon arrival at the farm asked Mrs. Hall if the horse belonged to her. She replied that he did and cried, "Where is my boy?" A search was then made and the lifeless body of Percy Hall was found, still warm, near the place where the horse became so excited while in the hands of Lawrence. About 20 feet from where the body was found was the large sharp-pointed rock. It is believed he crawled the distance from the rock to where his body was found.

Dr. Dison was summoned from Medicine Hat and announced that death was caused by a shattered liver. This is substantiated by the fact that the only bruise on the body is directly over the liver.

Percy was the eldest of five children and a strong, robust boy. His father is the owner of the farm and the body was found near the house.

is away much of the time, this was the mother's right bower. His loss will be most keenly felt.

The father, Gust Hall, is somewhere in the working province on a threshing rig. His whereabouts is unknown, as he has not written home since he left more than two weeks ago for any destination that might provide work. The funeral took place from the Protestant church Whifflet, at 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

FOUR KILLED
IN TRAIN WRECK*Rock Tunnel on C.P.R.
Main Line near Palliser, Caves With Fatal Results

Oct. 21. Four men were killed and two were injured when a Canadian Pacific Railway freight train was caught by falling rock in a 41 tunnel one mile east of Palliser, B.C. The dead are: Engineer Dean and Fireman Goodwin of the first engine on the train; Fireman Richmond of the second engine, all of Revelstoke, and Lance McCarrigan of Kincardine, Ont., who was stealing a ride. The injured are: Engineer Peterson of Revelstoke and a passenger named Robert Watson.

The following official statement of the accident has been issued by D.C. Coleman, vice-president of the C.P.R. "A portion of the roof of a tunnel located one mile east of Palliser, B.C., fell in at 11 a.m. Thursday. A freight train which was being hauled by two engines, with a third engine assisting from the rear was passing through at the time and was caught by the falling rock. Engineer Dean and fireman Goodwin, of the leading engine; Fireman Richmond of the second engine, all of Revelstoke, were killed, as well as a man named Lance McCarrigan of Kincardine, Ont., who was stealing a ride. In addition to these, Engineer Peterson, of Revelstoke and a passenger named Robert Watson were injured."

The escape of oil from the tenders of the damaged engines caused a fire which destroyed several freight cars. "As it may take some time to repair the damage to the tunnel a temporary line is being built around the obstruction, but as this involves the provision of three bridges, including one across the Kicking Horse River, it will be two or three days before traffic can be handled between Golden and Field." In the meantime, trains will be diverted by way of the Kootenay Central branch and also over the Kettle Valley Railway, which means but little if any delay in movement.

"The tunnel, which was constructed in 1903, is 310 feet long and lined throughout with concrete. The trouble was apparently due to heavy rains causing a movement of the mountain above in the direction of the Kicking Horse River, which resulted in a pressure on roof and sides of the tunnel, which proved overwhelming.

Maintaining Efficiency Of Agricultural Land Is Greatest Problem

C. H. McMichael, speaking recently before the Chicago section of the American Chemical Society, made the following among other statements which Canadian farmers would do well to ponder:

"The explosion of the huge chemical works at Oppau, where fertilizers were made through the fixation of atmospheric nitrogen, has demonstrated to us the world over the resources for replenishing the richness of her fields which Germany had at hand."

"Although our country is 15 times as large as Germany, we have but 15 per cent more arable land," said Mr. McMichael. "We produce only the same amount of barley and not quite twice as much oats. Germany produces six times many potatoes and twice as many as we do. In 1923, when the war broke out, Germany had first in the world farms, averaging 35 acres, and we had 6,340,000 farms, averaging 15 acres. These German farms produced 40 per cent more wheat, 75 per cent more barley, 50 per cent more oats, and twice as much as we did."

"Within the last 20 years Germany has increased her yield per capita from 15 to 29 bushels, while the United States has increased her yield per capita from 19 to 28 bushels; the United States from 12 to 15 bushels. Germany increases her yield of rye from 24 to 39 bushels; the United States from 12 to 24 bushels. Within only one-sixteenth of the land area, Germany shows an agricultural efficiency of about six times that of the United States."

"We are at the present time in trial in our agricultural industries," continued Mr. McMichael. "With a sparse population and a broad area of uncultivated land, a nation can choose between the use of land and the use of machines, but with a densely populated country there can be no choice. The intensive method must be followed. We of the United States have been a wasteful people. We have been a much later and have moved from State to State in search of the more fertile spots of land, and neglected to maintain the producing power of our conquered areas."

"Large populations and low crop yields," added the speaker, "do not go together. In this country our population is rapidly growing and we must move fully with nature's stores. In the United States we have a much larger and more varied agriculture."

"Our soil fertility is decreasing and our lands at the same time are being depleted. Our ditches are all lined with the fertility of our farms that have been due to the use of our rivers we lose annually 500,000,000 tons of fertility, thereby diminishing productivity at a rapid rate. Our sewer pipes are taking from our farms more tons of soil fertility annually. The crops that are taken from the field, and never get back in any form, take 30,000,000 more tons of fertility from our lands each year."

"In the United States we have a fast rate of population increase," declared Mr. McMichael. "Our population will be, according to Mr. Edward M. East of Harvard, more than doubled by the year 2000."

"At the same time we are increasing our present methods of agriculture and our present rates of food and clothing consumption, 197,000,000 tons of ultimate population will be needed."

"Mr. McMichael urged that the time had come for the engineer, and especially the chemist, to consider what must be done to maintain the agricultural efficiency of the country and to replenish the soil. At the same time he called attention to our present methods of agriculture and our present rates of food and clothing consumption, 197,000,000 tons of ultimate population will be needed."

The speaker concluded by saying that unless we solve vital problems solved in the near future, coming generations will find their food supply very variable, to a point where dependence of our nets in, and we will be conditioned here similar to those now obtaining in the Orient.

Fertilizer Found In Alberta

Investigation Will Prove Invaluable to Agriculture in Province.

Supplementary to the soil survey, which is now in progress, the Scientific and Industrial Research Council of Alberta is preparing to undertake an investigation of possible sources of new fertilizers.

It is estimated that the requirements that go to make up the various fertilizers are to be found in certain parts of the Province, and as soon as the survey is completed, steps will be taken to see what fertilizer can be made by different portions of the Province, and the location of the nearest raw materials that go to make up the desired fertilizers.

"I've come to see you about a very important matter, Maggie!" she announced, as she threw off her formal new ones and unbuttoned her coat, and then unbuttoned her blouse.

"Then certainly I will take myself out of the way," said Mr. Smith, with a smile.

"No, please don't," Mrs. Jane held up a detaining hand. "Part of it concerns you, too, and I don't know what to do," she said, "I should like your advice."

"Concerns me?" puzzled the man. "I am sure you are not going to give up boarding you, and one thing I came today for was to ask Maggie if she would be willing to let me poor Maggie the first chance at you, of course."

"That's all at me?" Mr. Smith laughed, "but I am unattractive."

"I don't know if it is possible that Miss Maggie may wish to—er—decline the great favor, but I am sure she would be willing to let me, and she may hesitate, for the sake of my feelings, to let me take her away."

"Well, we'll have to let her have a look at once."

"Nonetheless." (Was Maggie blindfolded, too?) "I am sure it would be very glad to take Mr. Smith as a boarder if he wants to come—but he's got some very nice ones, too, I am sure."

"But tell me, why are you letting him go, Jane?"

"Well, I am sure it will embarrass me," laughed Mr. Smith again nervously. "Do I eat at your table, or merely have a meal in the general?"

But Mrs. Jane did not appear to have heard him. She was looking at Miss Maggie, her eyes somber, intent upon her.

"Jane, I am sure you are a bit 'fattie,'" exclaimed two small voices.

"Yes, I am. She says it's perfectly absurd for me to take boarders, with all our money, and she's a making a terrible noise about it."

Miss Maggie's eyes shone with a twinkle of mirth as she said: "I am ashamed—positively ashamed of it, but I have never had a decent pint yet."

Miss Maggie's lips pucker'd a little.

"I am, yes, only it cost so much. I've always wanted a house—with a yard, I mean, that would be nice for Mel, of course."

"Well, why don't you go?"

"You know I have; but it'll cost so much, Maggie. Don't you think it costs a lot on the board?"

But all the interest that the money could be used for, and the fact that she had seen something like it." Her face grew suddenly silent and happy. "I never knew that there was so much money, could earn, while you didn't have to do a thing as sit back and wait for it to come in."

Miss Maggie was about to say something like I ever saw."

"I counted up the other day how much we'll have if we've spent a cent for ten years—the legacy, I mean."

"I am sure it's more," she exulted, "but I am going to spend any of that money before ten years."

Mrs. Jane fell back in her chair. The actions (rown came again to her face).

"Oh, yes, of course. We have spent a lot of it, already. Frank has brought out that horrid grocery across the street, and he's put a lot in the bank, and he's spent from that every day, I know. And I am willing to spend more."

"I am going to pay so much inheritance tax and all that it would be my way not to spend much."

"I am sure you are right. I am made up, you know, but Frank and Melvett—they won't hear to it a million times. I am sure they are right, they're teasing me all the time to get new clothes, both for me and for her. But they are very poor, and I can't do anything with Maggie. Now what shall I do?"

"I should move. You say yourself you'd like to."

"What do you say, Mr. Smith?"

Mr. Smith leaped to his feet and stood over her, his eyes wide as he took a nervous turn about the room before he spoke.

"Then certainly I will take myself out of the way," said Mr. Smith, with a smile.

"No, please don't," Mrs. Jane held up a detaining hand. "Part of it concerns you, too, and I don't know what to do," she said, "I should like your advice."

After I had taken one box I felt better, so I continued until I had a dozen boxes.
